Do you feel called to ministry but not to the traditional role of pastor?

Do you want to help lead the Church in doing justice and loving mercy?

The M.Div.-M.S.W. Dual Track degree prepares leaders for professional ministry where Christian theology and faith meet the needs of the community and social systems. Learn to integrate the theory, knowledge, and skills required of pastors and social workers as instruments of grace and peace.

- Students complete 63 out of the 87 credit hours required for a Master of Divinity through WTS (on campus or distance learning.) The remaining 24 hours transfer from an M.S.W. program of the student’s choice back to the seminary as electives, reducing degree-completion by at least a year.

- The degree programs may be completed in either order.

- Those who have a B.S.W. degree and have received advanced standing for the M.S.W. program can earn both master degrees in just over three years.
Dual Track M.Div.-M.S.W.

- Ministry and social work professionals lead dual track students in cohort groups throughout the program, helping students integrate the professional fields of ministry and social work into their respective vocations.

- Mentored internships in faith-based social service organizations, complementary coursework, a Christian formation retreat, and intercultural immersion experience ensure personal, professional, and spiritual growth.

- The degree can be completed in a 5-year distance learning format (the sequence of courses is available online at westernsem.edu).
